FINALS AT WILLIAM AND MARY ARE GAY

German in Morning and Literary Exercises at Night.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
WILLIAMSBURG, VA., June II.—The sayeties attending the final exercises at William and Siary began this morning with the morning german, given at 10 o'clock in the gymnasium. The german was a success in every respect. The building was crowded to its utmost capacity, about fifty couples being present. Excellent music was furnished by Ressnich's Band, of Richmond. Dancing lasted until 2 o'clock.

one of its most glorious and successful sessions. The buildings are almost completely covered with decorations.

The 'Phoenix Literary Society held its first celebration in the colloge chapel this swening. The chapel was gaily decorated in college colors, and the bright glare of the electric lights, casting bright reflections from the colors of orange and white, made a brilliant scene. A large crowd was in attendance, the chapel and library both being crowded to their utmost capacity.

A most interesting programme had been arranged, and the large audience was handsomely entertained for over two hours. Elegant music was furnished between the speeches by Kessnich's Band, of Richmond.

The exercises of the evening began promptly at $6'clock. Emmet B. Paison, president, made a short address welcoming the audience and putting before them in a beautiful style the object of the celebration. The programme consisted of debates and orations.

The winner in each case was to receive a medal. The question of the debato read as follows:

"Resolved, That the foreign policy pursued by the United States since 1805 has been inconsistent with the Democratic ideals set forth in the Monroe doctrine and the Peclaration of Independence, and therefore should be condemned."

The affirmative side was taken by J. B. Terrell; the negative by G. A. Dovell. Both young men are promisent in all college affairs, and both debated well. The medal was awarded to J. B. Terrell. After this was a short period of music, following which was an oration by Joseph Williams. The subject of the oration was "The Value of Undividual Independence in American Civilization.

He was followed by J. W. Heffin in an oration on "A Higher Citizenship Through Education."

Hampden-Sidney College with the baccalaureate sermon Sunday by the Rev. Dr.
Harris E. Kirk, of Baltimore.
The college church was filled by an audence which was the largest since the centennial of Hampden-Sidney College, in 1876. In the pulpit were the pastor, Rev. James Murray, and President McAllister, and Dr. James Power Smith, of Richmond, Va. The sermon was a strong and fervent appeal for a life consecrated to the service of God and our fellowman. It made a deep impression and cannot be forgotten.
At night in the College Memorial Chapel the sermon before the Young Men's Christian Association was preached by the Rev. Asa Dupuy Watkins, of Bristol, Tenn., an alumnus of the class of 184,
It was on "The Saved Life," its importance, its principles, its marks, and how it is to be secured—a fine sermon.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

BLACKSBURG, VA., June 11.—The second day of the closing exercises of the Virginia Polytechnic Institute was characterized by no unusual occurrences. The morning was given over to a tennis tournament, in which the finals in doubles were played off. The contest resulted in an easy victory for Campbell and Harris.

An informal hop followed the literary exercises. Dancing was begun at 10 and exercises. Dancing was begun at 10 and lasted until the tocsin sounded taps.

The baccalaureate sermon was preached yesterday by Dr. H. M. Vines, of the Freemason Street Baptist Church, Norfolk, and was in every way a masterly effort.

Joined in with the joyous chorus with a right hearty will.

The college is in the midst of its commencement finals, and that accounts for its being one of the happiest spots in old Virginia to-day. The seventy-third session is about closing, and the announcement of the degree men to-morrow and of the graduates in the various classes puts the finishing touches on the ceasion, which is the degreet of the year casion, which is the dearest of the year to the hopeful young student, if not to

to the hopeful young student, if not to the teacher.

To-day will be the busiest day of all at the institution, and in the short space of less than twelve hours is to be crowded a whole host of good things.

This morning at 11 o'clock the trustees of the college will meet to transact business and confer the annual D. D. s and L. L. D.'s, besides electing a professor to fill the chair of chemistry. They will adjourn shortly after noon to attend the alumni luncheon, and will convene again later in the afternoon for further work.

Alumni Luncheon.

Alumni Luncheon.

To-day at 1:30 o'clock will be the event of the commencement to the alumni, and, in fact, to-day is the day of the alumni. Their annual dinner and reunion will come off at Murphy's Hotel annex this afternoon at 1:30, and the sons of the college will congregate by scores to pay honor to their alma mater and again Join the hands of fraternal good fellowship.

The classes which will take the most prominent part in the toasts are those of 1856, 1881, 1896, 1901 and 1908. Toasts will be replied to by Superintendent William F. Fox, of the class of '56; by Rev. G. B. Taylor, of Hollins, of the class of 1898, and Mr. H. Lee McBain, of the class of 1901. Mr. P. B. Flippen, of the class of '96, will respond on behalf of this year's graduates.

Dr. H. H. Levy, president of the association of alumni, will preside, and other toasts will be responded to by Dr. Foushee, Mr. J. Alston Cabell and Mr. A. D. Jones. All former students may come to the luncheon upon payment of one vear's dues to the association. This
